COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held last week Thursday evening for the purpose of deciding whether the town should lease Oak Grove Park another year under the contract made by the council of last year. All the members were present. J. B. Robison, Esq., town solicitor, read an opinion, the substance of which was, that the town could not lease nor purchase the said park for the following reasons:

1st, Because it is an unlawful increase of the indebtedness of the town.

2nd. Because no Council has power to limit future Councils in the control of public property purchased with public funds.

3rd. Because the Town Council are not empowered by act of incorporation to use the public moneys for the purpose contemplated in said contract.

Peacock moved and Gorrey seconded that the lease be continued another year under the old contract. This evoked a great deal of discussion and an aye and nay vote being called resulted as follows: Peacock and Gorrey—aye; Rhoades, Gilmore, Kramer and Holmes—no. Motion lost. Several of the members expressed themselves as favoring the proposition, providing the agreement was altered and the reservation removed. Were the town to purchase it under the existing lease, they never could sell it or use it for any purpose save that of a public park. Peacock moved and Gorrey seconded that the lease be continued the same as last year with the exception that the Land Improvement Co., enter into a contract to deliver a deed in fee simple without any reservations when the purchase money shall have all been paid. Ayes and nays called: Peacock, Holmes, Rhoades and Gorrey, aye; Gilmore, Kramer and Drinker, no. The motion was carried. Adjourned.

PROCTOR INN.

John P. Hill, proprietor of Proctor Inn at Jameson City, has started a deer park. He has a fine doe confined within an inclosure near the Inn. The deer gave birth to a pair of fawns a couple of weeks ago, but unfortunately both died. A piano has recently been placed in the parlor of the Inn. Mr. Hill knows how to run a hotel, and is fast building up a nice business.

Arrangements have been made to have the office and bar room papered.

The King's Daughters.

Mrs. M. L. Wigfall of Philadelphia, State Secretary of the King's Daughters, gave a very interesting discourse on that organization at St. Paul's Parish House last Sunday afternoon. The meeting was well attended, and much interest was manifested. The membership is not confined to any one religious body, and the object is to do a general christian work. A circle has been formed here, of which Mrs. Samuel Wigfall is commander.

THE LUCKY LADY.

Miss M. Herring, daughter of A. B. Herring of Orangeville held the lucky number that drew the $50 White sewing machine given away by J. Saltzer last Saturday night. The exhibition last week was visited by 392 ladies who registered their names. Many more attended who did not care to register. The lucky number was 299.

DOGS.

Dogs are nuisances as a general thing Some are worse than others, but there are few exceptions to the general rule. The Legislature recognized this fact when they put a tax on them.

But unfortunately the assessors have ignored the law to a large extent, and the proportion of dog owners who pay taxes is very small. There are 219 dogs assessed in Bloomsburg, but everybody knows that there are a thousand dogs or more in the town. Now that the warm weather is at hand the Town Council should require every canine to be muzzled. Owners of valuable dogs, if there are such things, should be careful that their animals are not injured by trespassing on other people's property. We haven't anything specially against dogs as a species, but if some particular curs don't stop upsetting our swill barrels and stealing our meat and running over our flower beds, and watering our plants, there will be some dog funerals soon.

The marriage of Miss Mame, daughter of Col. A. J. Frick of Danville, to Mr. John Tabor, will take place at the bride's home on June 15th.

Bloomsburg Council No. 156 Order of United American Mechanics will hold a picnic in the month of August date and place determined later.

EAST BENTON.

The late heavy rains have swollen the streams beyond their bank capacity—hence considerable damage has been done.

The firm of Rhor McHenry & Son, Distillers, have a large stock of the best brand of whiskey on hand, besides a large stock of fine shotes and fat hogs. John is the main manager of the concern, and he is the type of a true gentleman.

The Benton Argus office presents a picturesque appearance as one approaches it from the bridge. In the event of a terrible flood we fear that the office is exposed to the ravages of the seething waters of that famous and historic stream.

William Ipher of this place has a ram a year old from which he clipped 16 pounds of wool within the year—two last July and 14 this Spring. The McKinley bill had nothing to do with this yield.

Last Wednesday week ago Elias Wenner and wife, of Vancamp, their daughter Alverna and her husband A. U. Lesher, of Lancaster, spent the day with us. We had a good "old democratic time". "A jolly time". Mr. Lesher is also engaged in teaching. He is very intelligent and talks for protection, but he could not "pull the wool over our eyes".

WALLER.

Our post master, Ezekiel Fritz has been unable to talk out loud during the past week. He says its the grip.

We have been visited by very hard rains of late, which have done considerable damage to fields and highways as well as to some crops.

Mr. W. B. Hess of this place and Miss Sarah Rider of North Mountain were married last week by W. L. Yorks, Esq.

The house was damaged considerably and it had burned a little in a few small places, but it is certainly very luckly that they fared as well as they did.

Cyrus Larish of Guava, died very suddenly Sunday night. He was enjoying usual good health and his death was wholly unexpected. He was about seventy years old.

If there is a more neatly printed, brighter and more reliable paper published in the county than THE COLUMBIAN, we, as well as others whose opinions we have heard expressed, have failed to notice it.

Miss Dora Robbins, daughter of Washington Robbins of Unityville, was nearly killed by lightning during one of the hard showers last week. She was in a small room near the stove alone, and when the house was struck it seemed to go through the whole building but the electrical current seemed more especially to follow the flue and fill the room where she was, so that if she had not been immediately removed she would have been suffocated. She remained unconscious for some time and one side of her face and arm were burned in blisters. Her recovery, however is now expected and she is convalescing as rapidly as could be expected.

MILLVILLE.

J. B. Eves received several McCormick binders and mowers this week.

The creeks were quite swollen the first of the week by the recent heavy rains that passed over this section.

Mrs. Elmira Marr and daughter, of Lightstreet spent Sunday at the home of her son W. B. German.

Some of our townsmen are not very well pleased with the recent street survey, as it hits their property pretty hard.

Rachel Battin of Greenwood spent a few days in town this week with friends.

The barn of Elroy Demott of near here was struck by lightning during one of the recent hard showers. No serious damage was done.

Fannie Kester who has been confined to the house for several weeks through sickness is able to walk out again.

C. W. Eves is building an addition to the house now occupied by Byron S. Keller.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Last Friday afternoon during the thunder storm, Mrs. John Foust of Montour township was struck by lightning and instantly killed. She was a daughter of Emanual Lazarus, and was on her way home from his house. She was going across the fields and was talking to Mrs. Charles Fry when she was struck. Her clothing was set on fire, and the back of her head was torn open. A husband and seven children survive her. The funeral took place on Monday.

STABBING IN CENTRALIA.

The Ashland Telegram gives the following account of a stabbing affray at Centralia one day last week:

Centralia was the scene of a serious stabbing affray at two o'clock this morning. Patrick Gallagher a single man of 26 years with other Centralia boys attended the picnic held at North Ashland grove yesterday afternoon. They imbibed a little too freely in consequence of which they became somewhat quarrelsome. They remained on the picnic grounds until about 1 o'clock when they started over the hill to Centralia. As they were passing down the street they came upon Kane, and a few hot words passed between him and Galagher, which resulted in a bloody affray. When it ended Kane was found to be stabbed in several places, and the blood flowing freely from the wounds. He was quickly carried to Dr. Gwinner's residence, and not a minute too soon—had they been a minute later the man would have been a corpse. The doctor succeeded in stopping the flow of blood, and the injured man was taken to his home which was only a short distance away. Other physicians were summoned, and the injuries were quickly dressed. Eight knife wounds were found in his body several of which required a number of stitches. The most serious is one inflicted on the left arm near the shoulder, the main arteries being severed. It is likely that the member will have to be amputated, as the gash in it is so deep that there is scarcely any more than the bone holding the arm, his coat was literally hacked and he also received several cuts about the head. A Telegram representative called at his home to interview him but his condition is such as debars any visitors. Constable James Thompson was notified and he went to the home of Galagher, where he found him slumbering sweetly. He was taken at once to the stone jug. The Telegram man called at the jail, and succeeded in getting an interview. He tells the following story:

He was walking down street in company with Richard O'Brien to whom he was speaking concerning a fight which had taken place between Kane and a young man named Brennan. As they passed John Curry's residence Kane, who had been lying on the porch and heard his name mentioned jumped up with the remark, "yes, and I'm here yet." The hot words that followed brought Thomas Horan and Bryan Dane, friends of Kane, to the scene. Gallagher claims that Kane being urged by his friends forced the fight and struck him first. He then drew his knife and threatened to use it on any who attacked him. He says Kane was again encouraged and the affray began, resulting as stated above.

Those who witnessed in addition to those mentioned above were, William Higgins and Richard O'Brien, and they might have averted bloodshed by timely interference.

Kane is 22 years old and is a son of the widow Mrs Owen Kane. He is spoken of as a quiet young man, and is not any way quarrelsome.

Gallagher is said to be possessed with an inclination to fistic affairs, and when cornered will use a knife without hesitation.

RAILROAD CROSSING.

On Monday last there was a meeting between General Manager Halstead, Superintendent Bogart, and Division Engineer Rose of the D. L. & W. R. R., and General Superintendent Lawler and Superintendent Yetter of the Philadelphia & Reading. They met at the point of the proposed crossing of the two roads below town, inspected the crossing plates, and agreed upon the interlocking semaphore and lamp system of signals. The crossing will be put in next Sunday. This arrangement was in accordance with the decree of the court in the crossing suit, and no other matters were discussed at the meeting.

LEAP YEAR PARTY.

Smith Jr. Misses Annie and Mame McCleary of Milton, W. E. Ranson of Williamsport, J. Simpson Kline of Sunbury, H. H. Cair of Tower City, H. W. Hodgdon of Scranton. The music by Bauer's Orchestra of Scranton was fine, and the refreshments were nicely served. The party broke up at three o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. M. A. Tiffany of Williamsport, formerly of Bloomsburg died at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. H. Bunnell at that city last Friday aged 69 years. Her death was sudden and unexpected. She was a daughter of the late Charles Doebler.

THE LUCKY LADY.

Miss M. Herring, daughter of A. B. Herring of Orangeville held the lucky number that drew the $50 White sewing machine given away by J. Saltzer last Saturday night. The exhibition last week was visited by 392 ladies who registered their names. Many more attended who did not care to register. The lucky number was 299.

DOGS.

Dogs are nuisances as a general thing Some are worse than others, but there are few exceptions to the general rule. The Legislature recognized this fact when they put a tax on them.

But unfortunately the assessors have ignored the law to a large extent, and the proportion of dog owners who pay taxes is very small. There are 219 dogs assessed in Bloomsburg, but everybody knows that there are a thousand dogs or more in the town. Now that the warm weather is at hand the Town Council should require every canine to be muzzled. Owners of valuable dogs, if there are such things, should be careful that their animals are not injured by trespassing on other people's property. We haven't anything specially against dogs as a species, but if some particular curs don't stop upsetting our swill barrels and stealing our meat and running over our flower beds, and watering our plants, there will be some dog funerals soon.

The marriage of Miss Mame, daughter of Col. A. J. Frick of Danville, to Mr. John Tabor, will take place at the bride's home on June 15th.

Bloomsburg Council No. 146 Order of United American Mechanics will hold a picnic in the month of August date and place determined later.

EAST BENTON.

The late heavy rains have swollen the streams beyond their bank capacity—hence considerable damage has been done.

The firm of Rhor McHenry & Son, Distillers, have a large stock of the best brand of whiskey on hand, besides a large stock of fine shotes and fat hogs. John is the main manager of the concern, and he is the type of a true gentleman.

The Benton Argus office presents a picturesque appearance as one approaches it from the bridge. In the event of a terrible flood we fear that the office is exposed to the ravages of the seething waters of that famous and historic stream.

William Ipher of this place has a ram a year old from which he clipped 16 pounds of wool within the year—two last July and 14 this Spring. The McKinley bill had nothing to do with this yield.

Last Wednesday week ago Elias Wenner and wife, of Vancamp, their daughter Alverna and her husband A. U. Lesher, of Lancaster, spent the day with us. We had a good "old democratic time". "A jolly time". Mr. Lesher is also engaged in teaching. He is very intelligent and talks for protection, but he could not "pull the wool over our eyes".

WALLER.

Our post master, Ezekiel Fritz has been unable to talk out loud during the past week. He says its the grip.

We have been visited by very hard rains of late, which have done considerable damage to fields and highways as well as to some crops.

Mr. W. B. Hess of this place and Miss Sarah Rider of North Mountain were married last week by W. L. Yorks, Esq.

The house was damaged considerably and it had burned a little in a few small places, but it is certainly very luckly that they fared as well as they did.

Cyrus Larish of Guava, died very suddenly Sunday night. He was enjoying usual good health and his death was wholly unexpected. He was about seventy years old.

If there is a more neatly printed, brighter and more reliable paper published in the county than THE COLUMBIAN, we, as well as others whose opinions we have heard expressed, have failed to notice it.

Miss Dora Robbins, daughter of Washington Robbins of Unityville, was nearly killed by lightning during one of the hard showers last week. She was in a small room near the stove alone, and when the house was struck it seemed to go through the whole building but the electrical current seemed more especially to follow the flue and fill the room where she was, so that if she had not been immediately removed she would have been suffocated. She remained unconscious for some time and one side of her face and arm were burned in blisters. Her recovery, however is now expected and she is convalescing as rapidly as could be expected.

MILLVILLE.

J. B. Eves received several McCormick binders and mowers this week.

The creeks were quite swollen the first of the week by the recent heavy rains that passed over this section.

Mrs. Elmira Marr and daughter, of Lightstreet spent Sunday at the home of her son W. B. German.

Some of our townsmen are not very well pleased with the recent street survey, as it hits their property pretty hard.

Rachel Battin of Greenwood spent a few days in town this week with friends.

The barn of Elroy Demott of near here was struck by lightning during one of the recent hard showers. No serious damage was done.

Fannie Kester who has been confined to the house for several weeks through sickness is able to walk out again.

C. W. Eves is building an addition to the house now occupied by Byron S. Keller.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Last Friday afternoon during the thunder storm, Mrs. John Foust of Montour township was struck by lightning and instantly killed. She was a daughter of Emanual Lazarus, and was on her way home from his house. She was going across the fields and was talking to Mrs. Charles Fry when she was struck. Her clothing was set on fire, and the back of her head was torn open. A husband and seven children survive her. The funeral took place on Monday.

STABBING IN CENTRALIA.

The Ashland Telegram gives the following account of a stabbing affray at Centralia one day last week:

Centralia was the scene of a serious stabbing affray at two o'clock this morning. Patrick Gallagher a single man of 26 years with other Centralia boys attended the picnic held at North Ashland grove yesterday afternoon. They imbibed a little too freely in consequence of which they became somewhat quarrelsome. They remained on the picnic grounds until about 1 o'clock when they started over the hill to Centralia. As they were passing down the street they came upon Kane, and a few hot words passed between him and Galagher, which resulted in a bloody affray. When it ended Kane was found to be stabbed in several places, and the blood flowing freely from the wounds. He was quickly carried to Dr. Gwinner's residence, and not a minute too soon—had they been a minute later the man would have been a corpse. The doctor succeeded in stopping the flow of blood, and the injured man was taken to his home which was only a short distance away. Other physicians were summoned, and the injuries were quickly dressed. Eight knife wounds were found in his body several of which required a number of stitches. The most serious is one inflicted on the left arm near the shoulder, the main arteries being severed. It is likely that the member will have to be amputated, as the gash in it is so deep that there is scarcely any more than the bone holding the arm, his coat was literally hacked and he also received several cuts about the head. A Telegram representative called at his home to interview him but his condition is such as debars any visitors. Constable James Thompson was notified and he went to the home of Galagher, where he found him slumbering sweetly. He was taken at once to the stone jug. The Telegram man called at the jail, and succeeded in getting an interview. He tells the following story:

He was walking down street in company with Richard O'Brien to whom he was speaking concerning a fight which had taken place between Kane and a young man named Brennan. As they passed John Curry's residence Kane, who had been lying on the porch and heard his name mentioned jumped up with the remark, "yes, and I'm here yet." The hot words that followed brought Thomas Horan and Bryan Dane, friends of Kane, to the scene. Gallagher claims that Kane being urged by his friends forced the fight and struck him first. He then drew his knife and threatened to use it on any who attacked him. He says Kane was again encouraged and the affray began, resulting as stated above.

Those who witnessed in addition to those mentioned above were, William Higgins and Richard O'Brien, and they might have averted bloodshed by timely interference.

Kane is 22 years old and is a son of the widow Mrs Owen Kane. He is spoken of as a quiet young man, and is not any way quarrelsome.

Gallagher is said to be possessed with an inclination to fistic affairs, and when cornered will use a knife without hesitation.

RAILROAD CROSSING.

On Monday last there was a meeting between General Manager Halstead, Superintendent Bogart, and Division Engineer Rose of the D. L. & W. R. R., and General Superintendent Lawler and Superintendent Yetter of the Philadelphia & Reading. They met at the point of the proposed crossing of the two roads below town, inspected the crossing plates, and agreed upon the interlocking semaphore and lamp system of signals. The crossing will be put in next Sunday. This arrangement was in accordance with the decree of the court in the crossing suit, and no other matters were discussed at the meeting.

LEAP YEAR PARTY.

The Leap Year party at the Exchange Hotel last Friday night was a very pleasant affair. Nearly thirty couples were present, among them being Dr. J. C. Reifsnyder, J. R. Smith Jr. Misses Annie and Mame McCleary of Milton, W. E. Ranson of Williamsport, J. Simpson Kline of Sunbury, H. H. Cair of Tower City, H. W. Hodgdon of Scranton. The music by Bauer's Orchestra of Scranton was fine, and the refreshments were nicely served. The party broke up at three o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. M. A. Tiffany of Williamsport, formerly of Bloomsburg died at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. H. Bunnell at that city last Friday aged 69 years. Her death was sudden and unexpected. She was a daughter of the late Charles Doebler.

HIS AUNT'S LEGACY.

Charles Eames stepped into the office of his friend Bowles, editor of the Greenville Courant.

"Well, how are you, Eames?" exclaimed the editor.

"I ought to feel happy, I suppose," said the young man, a little ruefully, "for I've just received notice of a legacy."

"Indeed! I congratulate you."

"Wait till you hear what it is."

"Well, what is it?"

"My Aunt Martha has just died, leaving fifty thousand dollars."

"To you? I congratulate you heartily."

"No; she leaves it to a public institution. She leaves me only her silver watch, which she carried forty years."

"How is that?"

"She didn't approve of my becoming an artist. She wished me to become a merchant. If I had consulted her wishes I should, doubtless, have been her sole heir. This small legacy is meant more as an aggravation than anything else, I know."

"But you can make your own way."

"I can earn a scanty living at present. I hope to do better by and by. But you know my admiration for Mary Brooks. If I had been Aunt Martha's sole heir I could have gained Mr. Brooks' consent to our marriage. Now it is hopeless."

"I am not so sure of that. This legacy may help you. If you will promise, for one calender month, not to mention or convey the least idea of the nature of your aunt's bequest I will manage the rest."

"I don't at all know what you mean, Bowles, but I am in your hands," answered the young artist.

"That is all I wish. Now, remember to express surprise at nothing; but let matters take their course."

"Very well."

In the next issue of the Courant the artist was surprised to read the following paragraph:

"We are gratified to record a piece of good luck which has just befallen our esteemed fellow citizen, the promising young artist, Charles Eames. By the will of an aunt, recently deceased, he comes into a piece of property which has been in the family for many years. Miss Eames is reported to have left fifty thousand dollars."

"Really," thought the young man, "anybody would naturally suppose from this paragraph that I had inherited Aunt Martha's entire possessions."

He put on his hat and walked down the street. He met Ezekiel Brooks, president of the Glenville national bank. Mr. Brooks beamed with cordiality.

"My dear sir, permit me to congratulate you," he said.

"You have read the Courant, I presume?" said Eames.

"Yes; and I am delighted to hear of your good fortune. Can I speak to you on business a moment?"

"Certainly, Mr. Brooks."

"You'll excuse my advice, but I know you are not a business man, while I am. My young man, do you want to make some money?"

"Certainly; I should be glad to do so," said the artist.

"James Parker has five hundred shares of the Wimbledon railway. It stands at fifty-six, a figure much below its real value. But Parker is nervous and wants to sell out. I want you to buy his entire stock."

"But Mr. Brooks—"

"I know what you would say. It may go down. But it won't. I have advices that a speedy rise is almost certain. Buy him out, and you'll make a handsome thing of it."

"But how shall I find the money?"

"Of course you haven't received your legacy yet. I know there are delays. No trouble about that. Give your note at ninety days and I'll endorse it. You'll sell out before that time at a handsome advance."

"I will place myself in your hands, Mr. Brooks; but you must manage the business."

"Certainly; I shall only want your signature when the documents are made out. By the by, come round and dine with us, or have you another engagement?"

Another engagement! If Charles Eames had fifty engagements he would have broken them all for the privilege of meeting Mary Brooks. This was the first time he had been invited to the banker's table. The fact is, until this morning Mr. Brooks, had scarcely vouchsafed him more than a cool nod on meeting. But circumstances had changed, or appeared to have done so, and his behavior altered with it. Such is the way of the world!

It was a very pleasant dinner. The young artist remained afterward.

"I have an engagement, Mr. Eames," said Mr. Brooks; "a meeting of the bank directors. But you must not go away. Mary will entertain you."

The young man did not go away, and apparently he was satisfied with the entertainment he received. He blessed his aunt for her legacy, if it only procured him this afternoon's interview with the young lady he admired.

But it gained him more. Every few days he received a similar invitation. The artist could not fail to see that Ezekiel Brooks looked with evident complacency on the good understanding which existed between his daughter and himself.

"What will he say when he finds out what sort of a legacy I have received from my aunt?" the young man thought.

Occasionally, too, he felt nervous about his hasty assent to the proposition to buy five hundred shares of railroad stock at fifty-six when he hadn't fifty dollars ahead. He reckoned up one day what his purchase would amount to and his breath was nearly taken away when he found it amounted to twenty-eight thousand dollars! He asked no questions but every now and then the old gentleman said,—

"All going well. Stock advancing rapidly."

With that he was content. Indeed, he was so carried away by the love of Mary Brooks that he gave little thought to any other subject.

One day Mr. Brooks came up to him his face beaming with joy.

"Wish you joy, Eames," he said. "Wimbledon has gone up like a rocket to par. Give me authority and I'll sell for you."

The artist did so, hardly realizing what it meant until three days after when he received a note to this effect:

"DEAR EAMES:—Have sold out your five hundred shares of Wimbledon at one hundred and one. As you bought at fifty-six this gives you a clear profit of forty-five dollars a share, or twenty-two thousand five hundred dollars. You had better take the tide and reinvest your surplus. Call at my office at once.

Yours very truly,
EZEKIEL BROOKS."

Charles Eames read this letter several times before he realized its meaning. Could it be that without investing a cent he had made over twenty thousand dollars? It must be a dream, he thought.

But when he called at the old gentleman's office he found it was really true.

"How about this money, Mr. Eames? Shall I reinvest it for you?"

"Thank you, sir, I wish you would. I should like a little in hand, however."

"Certainly. Will that answer?" and the old gentleman wrote a check for five hundred dollars and placed it in the hand of the artist.

It was more money than he had ever before possessed at one time. This was convincing proof of the reality of his good fortune.

The next day he went to the city and ordered a handsome suit of clothes at a fashionable tailor's. The fact was, his old coat was getting very threadbare and his overcoat decidedly seedy. While he was about it he bought a new hat and boots, as well as several other needed articles, and yet returned with money enough in his pocket to make him feel rich. He changed his boarding house, engaging a handsome room in a much nicer place.

"It seems to me you are dashing out, Eames," said his friend, the editor.

"You know I have had a legacy," said Eames, laughing.

"I really begin to think you have," replied the editor.

When Eames appeared on the street in his new suit it was taken as a confirmation of the news of his inheritance. His removal to a fashionable boarding-house was additional confirmation. It was wonderful how he rose in the estimation of people who had before looked on him as a shiftless artist. All at once the thought occurred to him:

"Why shouldn't I propose for Mary Brooks? With twenty thousand dollars I could certainly support her comfortably. There is a very pretty house and tasteful grounds for sale at five thousand dollars. This would make a charming home."

One morning young Eames, with considerable trepidation, broached the subject to Ezekiel Brooks.

"No one I should like better for a son-in-law, if Mary is willing," was the prompt answer.

Mary was willing, and as there seemed no good reason for waiting, the marriage was celebrated within a few weeks.

"Charles," said the father-in-law after the young couple had returned from their wedding journey, "it is time for me to give you an account of your money affairs. I have been lucky in my investments, and I have thirty-one thousand dollars to your credit, or, deducting the amount paid for your house, twenty-six thousand dollars. By the way, have you received your aunt's bequest?"

"Yes; I received it yesterday," answered his son-in-law.

"Indeed!"

"Here it is," said the young man, and he produced a battered silver watch.

"And do you mean to say that is all she left you?" asked his father-in-law, looking quite stupefied.

"Yes, sir,"

Ezekiel Brooks whistled in sheer amazement, and his countenance fell. For a moment he regretted his daughter's marriage, but then came the thought that his son-in-law, through a lucky mistake, was really the possessor of quite a comfortable property, which under his management, might be increased, so he submitted with a good grace and is on the best of terms with his son-in-law, who is now in Italy with his wife, pursuing a course of artistic study.

Charles Eames carefully treasures the old watch, which he regards as the foundation of his prosperity.

Nero Wore a Monocle.

Spectacles were invented six hundred years ago. The use of glass to aid the sight of defective eyes is, however, much older. Nero looked through a concave glass in watching the gladiatorial games, and many other historical men of his day were dependent upon similar devices for lengthening their sight. Till the latter part of the 13th century only the single glass was in use. In 1290 the double glass was invented, some say by Salvino degli Armali; others, by the monk, Alexander of Spain. In the fourteenth century spectacles were used quite frequently by the very wealthy and high born, although they were still so scarce that they were bequeathed in wills with the elaborate care that marked the disposition of a feudal estate. The holy Antonius of Padua, who preached to the fishes when men refused to hear him, gave to the poor, according to the legend, not only his clothes, but also his spectacles.

The first spectacles, which were very expensive, were made in Italy. Somewhat later the manufacture of cheaper glasses sprang up in Holland, and it spread late in the fourteenth century to Germany. Nurnberg and Rathonow acquired fame for their glasses between 1400 and 1500. For many years glasses were used only as a means of aiding bad eyes. First in Spain appeared the fashion of wearing glasses merely for the sake of wearing them. It spread rapidly to the rest of the continent, and brought about the transformation of the old 13th century spectacles into eye-glasses, and eventually into the monocle, "the cosmopolitan trademark of the dandy."

A kindly feeling cannot fail to touch the heart.

Growing More Liberal

That's what the human race is doing — particularly the American part of it.

There are a few left who are satisfied with ancient history. But most people are ready to apply modern progress and common-sense to the treatment of the human stomach—an organ that demands its rights whether or no; that resents the insults of worn-out methods. All this is to emphasize the facts about

COTTOLENE

There was once a prejudice against Cottonseed oil. But people who are alive, who investigate, who have no bigotry in their composition, have found that pure, refined cottonseed oil combined with selected beef suet is a better article in every conceivable way than hog's lard. And so they wisely use it for cooking—and are correspondingly healthy and happy. The sales of COTTOLENE are enormous and constantly increasing; a proof that it is appreciated by appreciative persons.

A Big Deal in Coal Lands.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY SECURES AN OPTION ON TRACTS IN THE SCHUYKILL REGION.

TAMAQUA, June 6.—Mining circles are interested in the prospective transfers of the only remaining large tracts of undeveloped coal lands hereabouts not controlled by corporations, it having leaked out that Pennsylvania railroad capitalists have secured an option on the Silverton and Tuscarora lands and have begun prospecting operations thereon.

The former lands are located near Minersville, on the line of the new extension the Pennsylvania company is constructing west from Pottsville, and just as soon as some old legislation is settled the new owners will take procession. The Tuscarora lands are a little west of this place and contain nearly 2,000 acres of very valuable deposits. On the eastern border of this tract the Reading company is opening an immense new operation at Silver Creek.

The Tuscarora lands are owned by the estates of F. P. Govern, P. W. Sheafer and others, whose representatives have repeatedly refused offers of over a thousand dollars an acre for the property. The Sheafer family are friendly to the Pennsylvania railroad, and it was through them that Scranton mining experts recently secured the Chamberland tract, on the northern outskirts of Pottsville, for the Pennsylvania people.

President Frisbie, of the Schuylkill and Lehigh railroad, and the Leisenrings recently, it is said, offered $1,500 an acre for this tract, but could not get it. Between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 tons of coal per annum could be readily shipped from the Tuscarora tract. The Sheafers expected to consummate the deal without publicity, and refuse to affirm the authenticity of the report, but sufficient has leaked out to pretty conclusively prove that the Pennsylvania can have the tract, and will take it if "prospecting" warrants the payment of the high price demanded. That this tract is very valuable is evidenced by the fact that, in its present state of wild mountain land, it is assessed an average of several hundred dollars an acre.

From Friend to Friend

Goes the story of the excellence of Hood's Sarsaparilla and what it has accomplished, and this is the strongest advertising which is done in behalf of this medicine. We endeavor to tell honestly what Hood's Sarsaparilla is and what it will do, but what it has done is far more important and far more potent. Its unequalled record of cures is sure to convince those who have never tried Hood's Sarsaparilla that it is an excellent medicine.

Dr. Waller's Opinion.

Superintendent of Public Instruction D. J. Waller, in speaking of the text books on manual training, said: "In the first place, manual training is a very recent idea, and there has been no time for text books on that subject to get old, and in the next place a text book on manual training is not much use anyhow. Do you think a boy could learn to hoe potatoes, or become a carpenter by reading a book? Did you ever try to learn an athletic sport from a book? I did once. When I was a boy I bought a book on swimming After I had mastered the theory as explained in that valuable work, I went down to the creek to put the theory into practice. They rolled me me on a barrel and punched me till they got the water out of me, and then I went home and burned the book."

Sarsaparilla belongs to the smilax family of plants, and is found very generally over the American continent; but the variety that is richest in medicinal properties is the Honduras root, of which the famous Ayer's Sarsaparilla is made.

Colors in favor this year are all shades of pale green that verge on gray. Do not choose the yellow green that looks hot and must be most sparingly used in hot weather. Chocolate brown and green is a favorite combination and a good one. Gray always needs some other tone combination to give it character. Bluish gray is detestable and brings out all the sallowness in a sallow person, but if gray you must have, and in the right shade it is most becoming, take that with the greenish shade. It should be trimmed with ether dark gray. brown or black. Never mingle pink with the cold gray. It is a mistake commouly made, but nothing can be more crude. Pink and black are linked together this year and pale yellow with deep orange. With a little black, such a combination.

"Oh, spare me, dear angel, one lock of your hair," a bashful young lover took courage and sighed. "Twere a sin to refuse so modest a prayer, so take the whole wig," the sweet creature replied.—Tid Bits.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla requires smaller doses, and is more effective, than any other blood medicines.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

The Republican National Convention met at Minneapolis on Tuesday and organized by electing Major McKinley chairman. The fight for the Presidential nomination is between Blaine and Harrison, with McKinley, Reed, Alger and Sherman as possible compromise candidates. Thursday morning despatches state the situation thus:

MINNEAPOLIS, June 8.—Of the two distinguished Americans who have been so assiduously weighed by his friends the past week for the presidential nomination, neither one to night seems to have assurance of sufficient votes to effect a nomination.

The seeker after accurate information as to the relative standing of these two candidates is compelled to discard as extravagant and quite misleading the figures issued from the headquarters of each, and a careful analysis of the expressed preference of all the delegations, together with a classification of the uncommitted delegates, shows that the two leading candidates are each from twenty-five to fifty votes short of the nomination. The balance of power, if a ballot had been taken to-day, would have been found to have rested with General Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, who would certainly have received from fifty to sixty votes, and thus prevented either of the leading candidates from receiving the requisite number for nomination.

DELEGATES DEEPLY DISAPPOINTED.

This is the tenth national convention held in the history of the Republican party and is the end of the fourth decade of the party which has played such an important part in the history of the American republic; but it can safely be asserted that the past quarter of a century has never witnessed a convention where there was such a rapid subsidence of enthusiasm as is noticeable here on the eve of the critical day which should decide the contest.

All the ardor and enthusiasm and irresistible conviction which the rank and file of both forces have constantly displayed to-day are singificantly absent to night In the first place, the average Republican has been deeply disappointed at the very leisure manner in which leading spirits of the convention have postponed the effectual business for which the delegates are called together and the feeling that if the program of delay succeeds, a ballot may be taken to morrow.

The leaders of the Blaine faction are to-night contemplating a movement which is

and which, if carried out, will be a farewell greeting to the short lived harmony and good feeling of the past twenty-four hours, whatever its effect may be in controlling the nomination. They have agents carefully going through the state delegations and selecting therefrom a list of delegates and alternates to the convention who are office holders under Harrison. They expect to compile this list and add thereto the names of all the administration office-holders who are on the ground as helpers in the effort to renominate the president and who are not delegates to the convention.

This list will be ostentatiously given out as indication of the pernicious example that is being set by President Harrison of the effort of an administration to perpetrate itself in power. The Blaine managers also insist with a good deal of vigor that ex Senator Ingalls, who has been unusually loyal to the president, has been promised the Russian mission. The Blaine people state this evening that it is not yet decided that the name of their candidate will be presented to the convention at all.

BLAINE RESIGNS.

HE TAKES A SUDDEN DEPARTURE FROM THE CABINET.

Official and political circles were startled last Saturday afternoon by the announcement that Secretary of State Blaine had resigned, and that the President had accepted his resignation. Many were incredulous until the following correspondence was made public:—

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1892.

TO THE PRESIDENT:—

I respectfully beg leave to submit my resignation of the office of Secretary of State of the United States, to which I was appointed by you on the 5th of March, 1889.

The condition of public business in the Department of State justifies me in requesting that my resignation may be accepted immediately.

I have the honor to be,
Very Respectfully,
Your Obedient Servant,
JAMES G. BLAINE

EXECUTIVE MANSION.

WASHINGTON, June 4, 1892.

TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE:—

Your letter of this date, tendering your resignation of the office of Secretary of State of the United States, has been received. The terms in which you state your desires are such as to leave me no choice but to accede to your wishes at once.

Your resignation is therefore accepted.

Very respectfully yours,
BENJ. HARRISON.

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE.

Blaine's Declaration of War.

Mr. Blaine has resigned from President Harrison's Cabinet. He has done so in the curtest possible terms, and his resignation has been accepted in the spirit in which it was tendered.

There can be but one interpretation of this act. It is a declaration of war. It tears up the February letter. It announces Mr. Blaine as a candidate against Mr. Harrison for the nomination at Minneapolis. It converts the "Blaine Boom" from a mere spurt of enthusiasm on the part of possibly indiscreet friends into a Titanic struggle for the nomination.

What the outcome will be it would be unsafe to predict. Mr. Blaine is undoubtedly the choice of a great majority of his party. But Mr. Harrison is intrenched in possession. The delegates have been elected with the understanding that Blaine was "out of it." There are many Harrison men in the convention, therefore, who would not be there if the present situation had been foreseen.

Many delegates are instructed for Harrison. But as the instructions were given under the impression that Mr. Blaine's name would not be presented some may interpret them to be nothing more than instructions to favor Harrison as against anybody except Blaine. Many delegates are office-holders and these will serve their chief and benefactor at all hazards.

There will be a struggle at Minneapolis of a deeper significance than is often witnessed in a national convention.

And after? How much of bitterness, how much of disappointment and resentment will be left behind?

This is not an ordinary break. It is not a commonplace rivalry. It is civil war in the Republican party.

Every Harrison man will regard Mr. Blaine's course as disloyal and treacherous. Every Blaine man will bitterly resent such imputations.

It is a family quarrel with all that the term implies. It is war of the most determined kind, and the battle at Minneapolis will not end it by any means. Here beginneth, not endeth, the lesson.—World.

Why Our Women Fade.

Many grievous reasons confront me as to "why our women fade," but I shall touch upon only a few of the strongest, writes Felicia Holt in the June Ladies' Home Journal. I look at the many women of my acquaintance; I see lines on brows which can only be brought there by worry, and "worry" I take to be one of the greatest foes to a woman's youth. There are dolls to be sure, who never think, work or act; I do not here discuss such creatures, but woman in her vocation as a sentient being. In this country, as in no other, do women have to struggle in the effort to keep up an appearance of great wealth they do not possess. It is an age of monopolies, and great fortunes are being absorbed by the shrewd financiers; hence, many far more cultivated and refined people must retire, "forgetting the world, be by the world forgot," or undertake a struggle which ends only in the grave. It would seem at the first an unworthy strife, and so it is, not only unworthy but horribly degrading if entered into with the purpose of vying with the more fortunate for the mere possession of money; but alas, it represents to the fastidious and well-born women all that to which by nature she is justly entitled: works of art, music, literature and the outcome of the ages.

It is not theory but fact—that Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the weak strong. A fair trial will convince you of its merit.

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION.

DESOLATION AT TITUSVILLE AND OIL CITY.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

The oil regions of Pennsylvania were visited by a disaster of fire and water last Sunday, that is only eclipsed in the history of this country by the memorable flood at Johnstown, just three years ago. For nearly a month it has been raining throughout western and northwestern Pennsylvania almost incessantly, and for the past three or four days in the towns in the devastated regions, it has been very heavy. The constant rains have converted the small streams into raging torrents, so that when the cloud burst came Sunday the streams were soon beyond their boundaries, and the great body of water came sweeping down Oil creek to Titusville, which is eighteen miles south of its source.

The Associated Press correspondent was standing on Centre street, directly in front of the Derrick office, and on the approach to the Oil creek bridge. The creek was a raging torrent, and Centre street for one square was a solid mass of humanity, and 500 or more people had approached this point of vantage, watching the muddy waters rolling by.

At about 11:30 upon the opposite side of the stream a greenish fluid floating on the water was noticeable. This increased rapidly in quantity and covered almost entirely the yellow muddy waters of the creek. A smell of gas and oil was perceptible and several gentlemen back of him were discussing the danger should the oil catch fire. Hardly were the words uttered when about 200 yards up the stream a mass of flames was seen to shoot heavenward. "Run" yelled a hundred voices and the people turned like stampeded cattle and started for the hills. Hardly had they started when a terrific explosion rent the air and the entire creek for hundreds of feet on each side seemed one seething mass of flame and smoke.

The panic-stricken crowd shrieked madly in their efforts to escape. Women and children were trampled under foot, and about twenty were severely bruised and had to be picked up by a few of the cooler heads and carried out of harm's way. Oil creek is not usually more than a foot deep at this point, where it empties into the Allegheny river, and about one hundred yards wide. Directly at its mouth is the iron bridge of the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad. About two squares further up the stream is the iron and wooden bridge of the city connecting the third ward with the city proper.

On the east side of of the creek is Trinity Methodist church, on one side of Centre street, and the Derrick office and Oil Exchange opposite. Across the creek and built up squarely from the water's edge was the hotel and livery stable of J. B. Reinbold, and the furniture house of Paul Sons. These buildings were built on a narrow strip between the creek and the hills, which rise precipitously back of them. About half a mile from the post-office northward, from here on the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad, a tank filled with gasoline was standing on a siding. Some young men noticed that the tank was leaking and knowing its explosive nature and seeing a shifting engine approaching ran up the side of the hill, where they turned and looking down as the engine passed witnessed a fearful sight, and a mass of flames shot a hundred feet in the air and the earth seemed to shake with an awful tremor. The engineer and fireman were seen jumping from the cab and it is supposed at this writing they were burned to death or killed by the force of the explosion. In an instant the flames swept madly over the entire upper part of the city, which was flooded by the oil waters of the creek, and men, women and children who were moving from their houses were caught by the deadly flames and if not burned to death outright were drowned in the raging flood.

It is almost impossible to find words to describe the awful calamity and at this time no one has any idea of the number of lives that have been lost. For miles up the creek on both sides everything is in ruins and hundreds of families have been rendered homeless. The fire came up so suddenly and so unexpectedly that very little if any property has been saved along this stream.

When the two explosions occurred this morning people were knocked down by the force of the shocks and every window for two squares along Centre street was broken. Falling glass added to the danger and several people were slightly cut. One young girl was picked up out of the mud of the street after the crowd had passed over her. She was badly bruised and cut, but not seriously injured it is thought. The panic at this time was something awful and it was remarkable that no one was killed by the horsee and the wild mob, as it was a case of everyone for himself.

Few of the spectators who were watching the flood when the explosions occurred and who escaped can give a good idea of what happened. All agree that there was a terrific explosion and that the air waa filled with flames. This was quickly followed by two other explosions. Many thought that hell had broken loose on earth, and they were not apparently very far out of the way. Three gasoline tanks had exploded almost at the same time.

The oil on the creek blazed up, gas in the air burst into a roaring flame, and sheets of water, land and air were all literally ablaze. Men, women and children were knocked prostrate by the shock, and many never arose. The multitude fled with screams of anguish for the high ground. In the rush many of the weak were trampled upon and badly injured. Some were hurt by horses; others ran, leaped into the water and were drowned. The flames in the air quickly burned out but they left huge volumes of black smoke across the face of the heavens, beneath which roared the fierce fire of the burning oil upon the water. The many submerged houses and shops along the creek bottom were soon in flame, and the silent fire of blazing gas was succeeded by the crackling flames, of burning homes. In many of these houses the people were confined. They could not escape for the fire. Within sight of thousands who heard their piteous screams they burned to death or leaped into the river, and there perished by both flood and fire.

Such a combined scene of destruction by two terrible elements was seldom witnessed upon this earth. It is marvelous that from this valley of death any were saved alive. It is strange that out of this mingling of fire and flood any houses were spared.

The story told by Harry McVeagh a member of a rescuing party which saved a dozen lives, surpasses in horror many of those related by persons who worked only in bringing corpses out of ruins, and his words indicate that he believes many of those saved alive would be better with the dead, they are so horribly wounded and burned. He with Wade Huling, William Couch and Albert Smith, rowed about the creek in a skiff after the fire had died off its surface, and reaching foot-bridge crossing, at the head of Seneca street, they found eleven burned person clinging to anything they could catch hold of, in a last desperate struggle for life.

Mrs. Harriet A. Marble, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was for years a martyr to headache, and never found anything to give her more than temporary relief until she began to take Ayer's Pills, since which she has been in the enjoyment of perfect health.

If it Should be Cleveland and Blaine.

With Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Blaine as opposing candidates in 1892, the issue would be largely personal as it was in 1884, but upon different grounds. The issue would be enthusiasm for Mr. Blaine as against confidence in Mr. Cleveland. But it would be impossible to interpret the result of the election as a popular verdict upon protection. Mr. Hiscock regarded the result of the election of 1888 as a mandate to a Republican Congress to pass a high tariff bill. Congress passed it, and the country immediately defeated the Republican party by an unprecedented majority.—Harper's Weekly.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." It invigorates the liver and kidneys, purifies and enriches the blood, sharpens the appetite, improves digestion, and restores health and strength. For Dyspepsia, "Liver Complaint," and every form of Scrofulous, Skin, or Scalp Diseases, as Salt-rheum, Tetter, Erysipelas, or any blood-taint, it's an unequaled remedy.

It's not like the sarsaparillas, which claim to be good for the blood in March, April and May. At all seasons alike, and in all cases, the "Discovery" alone is guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

It's the cheapest blood-purifier, no matter how many doses are offered for a dollar, for you pay only for the good you get. But it's the best, or it couldn't be sold so.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1892.

The Democratic National Convention meets in Chicago, on June 21st.

Previous to the year 1820, when the first regular shipments are said to have commenced, an experimental shipment of six loads of anthracite coal to Philadelphia was made. The coal was loaded in "Arks," each containing about 100 tons. Four of these boats were lost, owing to the difficulties of navigation. Two reached Philadelphia in safety, but the new fuel—new to Philadelphia—was not popular. It sold very slowly, until at last the authorities bought the remnant, broke it up, and used it for improving the streets.

Gettysburg.

The New York Commercial Advertiser says in a recent editorial:—

"There is no spot in this country so attractive to those who have patriotic emotions, and who honor heroic deeds, as the quiet little town in Southern Pennsylvania, known as Gettysburg, which the great battle of the Civil War has made historic for all time. Unlike Waterloo, this field is marked by monuments which tell every detail of the struggle. Nearly four hundred of them mark the spots where the Federal forces fought and won everlasting glory. Many of these monuments are genuine works of art. In fact, this famous battle-field is a grand out-door National Gallery of Art—heroic Art. Nothing like it can be seen on either hemisphere. Twenty miles of roads have been laid out on the field, and a million dollars' worth of bronze and marble may be seen in a day. As an object for Summer Excursions there is no such spot on the Continent. The scenery about Gettysburg is beautiful and full of repose. Its hotels are good, its people hospitable and appreciative, and the Reading Railroad has made the journey thither comfortable and even luxurious.

THE REPORT OF THE TWENTY-THIRD Annual Convention of the Columbia County Sabbath School Association.

The Association met at Orangeville, in the Union Church, May 31st and closed Wednesday, June 1st. Officers present, Mr. H. R. Bower, President; Rev. Houtz, Vice President; A. W. Speer, Cor. Sec; Miss E. Rupert, Rec. Sec; Mrs. McHenry, Treasurer, and delegate to State Convention. M. I. Low. An address of welcome was given by Rev. Davis, response by the President. The report of the delegate to the State Convention was full of interest and encouragement, and was listened to with pleasure by the large audience. Corresponding Secretary gave a complete report from which we take the following: Seven new schools or schools revived, have been added to the list. At present there are 130 schools in the County with a membership of 12,198. Columbia County now takes rank with nine other counties in the state, as a banner county. Mr. Martz gave a short paper on "Responsibility of Officers," followed by Rev. Houtz on the subject, "How much of the Sabbath should be spent at home for Religious culture." The use of the Revised version of the Bible, by Rev. U. Meyers. Prof. Sprenkel was present Tuesday afternoon and evening sessions. A short talk on, "the Art of Illustration" was given by him, also a clear, comprehensive outline for old Testament Study, and in his usual happy way answered many questions handed him. Rev. Sones read a carefully prepared paper on Temperance followed by short talks on the same. In the absence of Mr. Creasy the topic "The proper Classification of Scholars" was opened by Rev. Sharretts, followed by short talks. Miss. Elizabeth A. Low read a fine practical essay on, "after the Convention What?" There were short, practical talks on the following: Systematic Substitute of Teachers; Public Recognition of newly elected Officers; Systematic Bible Reading. Several recitations by home talent were creditably rendered. Officers elected for the ensuing year are: M. I. Low, President; Rev. Heilman, Rev. Brewster, Mr. Jos. Garrison, Vice Presidents; A. W. Spear, Corresponding Secretary; Miss E. Rupert Recording Secretary; Miss M. Conner, Assist; Delegate to State Convention, Dr. I. E. Edwards, alternate, H. V. White. Place of next meeting Millville. The following Resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, the sessions of this convention have all been exceedingly interesting, and the work done instructive and profitable, therefore.

Resolved:—That our sincerest thanks are due and hereby are tendered. First to our Heavenly Father for the beautiful weather with which he has favored us. Second to the Trustees, Sexton and others for the floral display, and for their beautiful church edifice during the convention. Third to the choir for the choice, appropriate and soul inspiring selections rendered. Fourth to the citizens of Orangeville for the royal manner in which they entertained the delegates. Fifth to the officers of the convention for the faithful performance of duty during the past year. Sixth to M. I. Low for his masterly report of the State Convention. Prof. Sprenkel for his excellent address, songs and to all others who assisted in carrying out our excellent programme. Seventh to the B. & S. and W. & W. R. R. for excursion rates to the Convention.

Resolved:—That we most heartily endorse and recommend the careful and prayerful use of the Bible in connection with the International lessons, that our scholars may know by the study of the inspired Word that God is Love.

Resolved:—That Sunday School scholars should attend the preaching of God's Word as well as Sabbath school services, and as parents are in a measure responsible for the non attendance of their children upon the public services, we deem it their duty to exercise the same authority over their children in this matter that they do in everything else where their authority must be obeyed. Since giving for benevolent purposes is largely the result of education, and since habits formed in early life are lasting as Eternity, therefore.

Resolved:—That such instruction should be given in our Sunday schools and churches, that will lead all to give of their substance according as the Lord has prospered him, not grudging or of necessity, but cheerfully, systematically and liberally.

WHEREAS, intemperance is stubborn and determined to remain, therefore.

Resolved:—That we will just as stubbornly resist it, and that we will endeavor to train all our Church and Sunday school forces, to systematic methods for its complete overthrow.

Resolved:—That we as a convention earnestly unite our prayers as they ascend to the throne of grace that the Columbian Exposition be closed on the Sabbath, the curse of rum be banished entirely from it and that we as a convention pledge ourselves that when we are assured that such will be the case, we will contribute of our substance to the completion of the International Sunday School Building.

Resolved:—That we go from this convention with the feeling that we have been amply rewarded for our time and trouble in coming here, sincerely trusting that the new inspiration received here will stimulate us to greater activities in our Lord and Master's work.

Convention closed by singing "God be with you till we meet Again," and Benediction by Rev. Houtz.

E. RUPERT, Secretary.
M. CONNER, Assistant.

STORMS IN THE STATE.

WASHOUTS AND WRECKS.

POTTSVILLE, June 4.—A destructive storm passed over this county last night. It was accompanied by terrific electric discharges and torrents of rain. The streams are flooded and washouts on the railroads are numerous.

In the neighborhood of Schuylkill Haven the Schuylkill River overflowed and covered several portions of low lands. The swollen streams throughout the Schuylkill Valley did much damage to the railroads.

At Glen Carbon several of the branch roads of the Philadelphia & Reading had severe washouts, delaying traffic. Near William Penn, on the Shenandoah Branch, Engineer Samuel Bailey's train was derailed at the wrshout, and several cars were piled up. The sudden pitching of the engine when it left the rails broke one of the steam pipes, scalding Bailey, and his fireman, John Reber, badly. They also received severe bruises. Owing to this washout the Frackville road train due here from Wilkes-Barre at 1:25 p. m., did not arrive until 3:40.

The down-pour of rain last night kept the pumps in nearly all the Philadelphia & Reading collieries going day and night to prevent the rise of the water in the collieries. At the Otto and Glendower the flow of water was so strong that the mules had to be hoisted at the Girard Mammoth Colliery. The water from an old mine breach broke in last night and filled the lower slips gangway to the collar.

LANCASTER, June 4.—The storm which passed over this county Friday afternoon and evening were unusually violent and did a large amount of damage in the rural districts, washing fields and road sand necessitating replanting of some of the lately planted crops.

The lightning was very severe. The large bank barn of Jonathan M. Warpel, in Conestoga Township, was struck by lightning and completely destroyed with the contents, excepting the live stock which were rescued. The loss is about $3,000; insured for $2,000.

In Leacock Township the large barn of Jacob R. Wilnier was also struck and completely destroyed, the live stock alone being saved. The loss is about $3,000 partially insured. Near Safe Harbor the barn on the farm of Jacob Funbile was struck and destroyed involving a loss of $2,000, partially insured. The lightning struck a number of other places, and many cattle were killed.

HARRISBURG, June 4.—The heavy rains of last night and to-day have swollen the Susquehanna River very much, and fears are entertained that the lower portion of the city may be flooded. West of the city the downfall of rain was very severe, and reports from the country are to the effect that many roads are washed out.

At Williamsport and vicinity the Juniata Valley, roads, fences, crops, and bridges were washed away. In Pfoutz's Valley there was much damage done to growing crops.

READING, June 4.—A terrific cloudburst poured over Berks County last night along the Sbhuylkill & Lehigh Railroad. Roads were submerged and washed out.

A regular waterspout poured over Emaus and vicinity. Hail was picked up by the shovel full at Shoemakersville. A barn was struck by lightning and a cow killed. Around Kutztown many fields were submerged. Reading escaped the tornado

There are some patent medicines that are more marvelous than a dozen doctors' prescription, but they're not those that profess to cure everything.

Everybody, now and then feels "run down," "played out." They've the will, but no power to generate vitality. They're not sick enough to call a doctor, but just too sick to be well. That's where the right kind of a patent medicine comes in, and does for a dollar what the doctor wouldn't do for less than five or ten. We put in our claim for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

We clame it to be an unequaled remedy to purify the blood and invigorate the liver. We claim it to be lasting in its effects, creating an appetite, purifying the blood, and preventing Bilious, Typhoid and Malarial fever if taken in time. Victoria's Melancholy.

HER TIME OCCUPIED IN VISITING PLACES HALLOWED BY THE MEMORY OF HER CONSORT.

From Balmoral comes the news that Queen Victoria has another melancholy mood, so much so that her intimate attendants are deeply concerned. Her Majesty had one of those fits about four Summers ago and spent nearly her whole time at Balmoral in visiting the various places where she used to go on picnics with the Prince Consort. She is going through the same programme on this occasion and has been even more solemn about it than before.

The Queen's grief for her consort has evidently not been weakened by time. She always keeps a vacant chair on her right at the private table at Windsor Castle and wherever else she goes, and it would be high treason in her eyes for anyone to occupy that chair.

PURE OLD RYE AND WHEAT WHISKEY.

We formerly had bonded warehouse room sufficient to store 8,000 gallons of whiskey, which we considered a stock sufficient to meet our trade, but we found however, the demand for our whiskey such, that for us to be able to get a larger stock of old whiskey, we were compelled to increase our storage room and have just completed an Ironclad bonded warehouse with a capacity sufficient to store 20,000 gallons of whiskey.

We aim to sell no whiskey less than one year old and from that on up to the oldest we have in stock except in original packages, thereby giving our patrons the benefit of the age.

What we claim over a great many other distillers:

FIRST, Briarcreek being a rich fertile valley, we are able to get a superior quality of grain to manufacture our whiskey from.

SECOND: Having our flouring mill in connection with our distillery we clean all our grain for distillation over a rigid process of the smutter, thereby, making it as clean as the grain that is ground into flour.

THIRD: We hand make, double distill our whiskey and then re-distill on a copper distill.

FOURTH: We leach our whiskey well thereby getting out the fusil oil and all impurities, which new whiskey contains.

FIFTH: We use no second-handed barrels, our whiskey is all put in new, clean, Indiana White Oak barrels which is considered the best barrel in the market.

SIXTH: It is a known fact that the hotter whiskey is kept the faster it will age, therefore, we heat our bonded ware-house with steam so the thermometer will register 70 degrees, when the temperature is at zero.

We have never distilled any corn, and do hereby guarantee all our whiskey positively pure rye or wheat and for purity and quality we defy competition, and to any person who will find any poisonous drug in our whiskey, put in by us, as it leaves our distillery or sales-room we will forfeit $600.00.

SPEAK NAE ILL.

Other people have their faults,
And so have you as well:
But all ye chance to see or hear
Ye have nae right to tell.

If ye canna speak o' good,
Take care, and see and feel:
Earth has all too much o' woe,
And not enough o' weal.

Be careful that ye make nae strife,
Wi' meddling tongue and brain;
For ye will find enough to do
If ye but look at hame.

If ye canna speak o' good,
Oh! dinna speak at all;
For there is grief and woe enough
On this terrestrial ball.

If ye should feel like picking flaws,
Ye better go, I ween,
And read the Book that tells ye all
About the mote and beam.

Dinna lend a ready ear
To gossip or to strife,
Or perhaps 'twill make for ye
Nae sunny things of life.

Oh! dinna add to others' woe,
Nor mock it with your mirth;
But give ye kindly sympathy
To suffering ones of earth.

Virtues of Walking.

Nothing is so agreeable to the spirit as motion. The large portion of our enjoyment of life comes from transition from place to place, more or less rapid. No recreation is more agreeable than travel, and no punishment so cruel as imprisonment. And of all sorts of locomotion, voluntary or involuntary, none is so satisfactory and refreshing as that which comes from the use of our feet. The body is not the only beneficiary; the spirit, always more or less in sympathy with the flesh, is the principal gainer. Never can one find so perfect a remedy against the mental condition, commonly spoken of as the blues, as a good, vigorous walk. Again and again, when oppressed by that melancholy to which we are liable at seasons, has the victim grasped hat and stick, and, striding out into the open air, has speedily left the enemy far in the rear. One can run away from the "blue devils" in a few minutes at any time.

The world knows all about the walks that Dickens took, for the delightful pictures he has given us are but transcripts of what he found and treasured. In forty years his daily tramps are said to have aggregated one hundred and forty thousand miles. He constructed for himself a theory that to every portion of the day given to intellectual labor should correspond an equal number of hours spent in walking. Carlyle usually took a vigorous tramp of several miles, enough to put him in a glow before he commenced the day's labor. Macaulay found in walking his favorite recreation. Buckle, the historian, walked both forenoon and afternoon, and heat or cold, sunshine or rain, made no difference to him. Kant, the philosopher, accustomed himself to a long walk every day without regard to atmospheric conditions. Equally resolute in his out-of-door exercise was Longfellow, who never omitted his daily tramp, though he might go no further than the walls of his garden. Gladstone at eighty-one is the most active all-round man in England. That bodily motion facilitates mental activity is something we all know by experience. Burns composed all his sweetest songs at the plough. Thompson could not compose except in the open air, and Tennyson, Wordsworth, Lander and Rousseau were all inspired as they walked.

There are thousands of puny creatures in this world of ours who have no excuse for their inanity—thousands of languid, torpid, complaining bodies, victims of dyspepsia and ennui, but with half their troubles in their brains, who, if they would walk regularly and pleasantly instead of consulting physicians and druggists, would soon find themselves sound, healthy and contented men and women. Instead of tossing on uneasy beds through weary nights, they would sleep "like tops;" their imaginations would clear up, their aches and pains and dumps would flee away, and almost before they were conscious of the transformation, they, who had thought themselves invalids for years, would forget, in the best enjoyments of life, that anything had ever been the matter with them. There are few people who can not, by proper attention to the best of physical exercises, add from ten to twenty-five years to the average vital span. The truth is that most persons die unconscious suicides, owing to the disregard of nature's simplest requirements; not strictly criminal, but nevertheless guilty.

HEALTH HINTS.

Any one subject to sore throat of any kind will find relief and a preventive in the daily use of salt and water as a gargle.

Much is said pro and con as to the effect of salt water on the head. When properly applied salt water is not only injurious but is an excellent tonic. If allowed to remain in a damp mass, however, it will cause the hair to fall out.

An excellent gargle is made of one tablespoonful of cayenne pepper, a half cup of boiling vinegar and three teaspoonfuls of salt. Mix well together, and when settled strain. Gargle the throat every half hour, or as often as relief is needed.

Dr. Mapother has often found a dietary largely composed of oatmeal and brown bread greatly promotes the growth of the hair, especially when the baldness was preceded by constipation and sluggish capillary circulation.—Philadelphia Press.

Dr. Keeley says of the cigarette habit: It brings confusion to the brain and heart and a train of ills from which it is hard to recover, even though you stop the habit. I will not treat a man who persists in using the cigarette. It results in insanity and death.

Benefit may be derived from an ocean climate in persons suffering from nervous exhaustion and overwork, in impaired convalescence from an acute disease, and in diseases of bones and joints. To these may be added the early stages of hereditary phthisis, especially in a young person.—The Sanitarium.

A Story of Love in Italy.

In front of a dingy row of tenement houses on President street, between Columbia and Van Brunt streets, Brooklyn, nearly half a hundred Italians—men, women, and dirty little children—stood vociferously welcoming and praising a tall, blender young man, who stood laughing and bowing to the crowd of his countryfolk, but at the same time keeping careful hold of the young woman at his side.

The girl had evidently been in this country only a very short time, for her holiday dress was almost an exact copy of that of the Neapolitan flower girl on a feast day. The right side of her face is beautiful in outline and charming in color, but when she turned there could be seen extending from her temple to her chin a broad scar, whose edges, drawn together, made a line of hideous wrinkles. So near to the eye ran the scar that the lower lid was drawn down, giving an ugly leering expression in awful contrast to the beauty of the other cheek.

The story of the couple was this. They had loved and wanted to marry, but the girl's father, a fisherman near Naples, had promised her to Francisco, a richer man. At last in despair she begged her lover to disfigure her face. He refused. The next night, the night before her proposed marriage — Giuseppine pleaded again for her own disfigurement. She hated her own beauty because it stood between herself and her own happiness. At last, in a wild fit of desperation, Augustine seized the knife, and with one broad sweep of the blade gashed the lovely face from temple to chin.

As they suspected, Francisco refused to marry a girl so disfigured, but Augustine was tried, and sentenced to three years in prison, and his marriage seemed as far off as before. All the time he was in prison, Giuseppine worked and saved, and when the three years had expired she met her lover at the prison gate, and, putting all her little savings in his hands, bade him go to America and earn enough to send for her. He refused, unless she married him before he left Naples, and as they walked toward the city they met a wandering padre, who made them man and wife.

After one short twenty-four hours of married life, Augustine left Naples on a coasting vessel, and finally made his way to this country, which he reached about six months ago. His countrymen heard his story and found him work, and meanwhile he saved every cent, until at last he had enough to send for his young wife. Her father refused to let her leave, and locked her in their little cottage, but the girl who would sacrifice her beauty for her love, laughed at the old jailer, and one night stole out and away to friends, who helped her to find the way to this country.—New York Sunday Advertiser.

Don't Let Trifles Annoy You.

What a blessed thing it is that we can forget! To-day's troubles look large, but a week hence they will be forgotten and buried out of sight. Says one writer: "If you would keep a book and daily put down the things that worry you, and see what becomes of them, it would be a benefit to you. You allow a thing to annoy you, just as you allow a fly to settle on you and plague you; and you lose your temper (or rather get it); for when men are surcharged with temper they are said to have lost it; and you justify yourselves for being thrown off your balance by causes which you do not trace out. But if you could see what it was that threw you off your balance before breakfast, and put it down in a little book, and follow it up, and follow it out, and ascertain what becomes of it, you would see what a fool you were in the matter." The art of forgetting is a blessed art, but the art of overlooking is quite as important. And if we should take time to write down the origin, progress, and outcome of a few of our troubles, it would make us so ashamed of the fuss we make over them, that we should be glad to drop such things and bury them at once in eternal forgetfulness. Life is too short to be worn out in petty worries, frettings, hatreds, and vexations.

A Pointed Salutatory.

The editor of a new weekly paper says by way of salutatory: "We would as soon expect to win a fortune by betting against a pat hand as to suppose that we shall please everybody. No doubt in the course of human events we shall realize those pleasant little editorial episodes in which indignant readers find no other soothing syrup for their wounded feelings than by attempting to 'put a head on the editor,' paint a mournful expression over his eye; or, without consulting him as to whether he wants to be an angel and with the angels stand, endeavor to send him to that bourne (on a dead-head ticket) from whence no editor returns. We stand six feet in our stockings in the winter time—five feet eleven inches and a half, without socks, in the summer season. Our principal amusement, when a boy, was to throw one hundred pound anvils over our head, hold a barrel of flour at arm's length, and practice other muscular developments. Aided by our early education in the manly art, we shall endeavor to hoe our own row, paddle our own canoe, and hold a full hand in the editorial game of 'bluff.'"

Think for Yourself.

Do your own thinking. Yes, that is the idea. Think for yourself. It is well to listen to the expressed thoughts of others, and it is an agreeable pastime to give expression to your thoughts; but when alone weigh what you have said. It is well to do this, for it will assist in curing you of false notions, and in eradicating unprofitable ideas, and in time, make you better men and women. What you thus gain from surroundings you will unwittingly transmit to the rising generation, and the result will be that you will do your share in the glorious work of elevating the human family. Do your own thinking.

What you lend is lost; when you ask for it back, you may find a friend made an enemy by your kindness. If you begin to press him further, you have the choice of two things—either to lose your loan or lose your friend.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The Methodist Episcopal Church baptized 10,000 persons in India during 1891.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has over 15,000 ministers, 14,000 local preachers, 100,000 official members and 300,000 Sunday school officers and teachers.

The bell that will ring the hours from the steeple of the college church at Notre Dame, Ind., is said to be the largest on the Continent. Eight men can easily stand erect within it, and its tones can be distinctly heard a distance of twelve miles.

The first church built in this country for colored Methodists was at the corner of Sixth and Lombard streets, Philadelphia, and was occupied in 1794. The site is still used by the congregation, which a couple of years ago erected a church worth $50,000.

In view of the comparative lack of city mission work in New York above Fourteenth street, some persons who have long been interested in that work are planning to secure a hall for preaching and tract distribution on Broadway somewhere between Twenty-third and Thirty-fourth streets.

The ecclesiastical returns of the Roman Catholic diocese of Colombo, Ceylon, for 1891, show marked increase in every particular as compared with those for 1890. The number of confirmations has increased from 2,565 to 5,639; the baptisms of heretics from 139 to 189, and of infidels from 1,011 to 1,117.

Count Campello, a distinguished Roman Catholic, who joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in Rome, but soon after placed his work under the direction of the Archbishop of Canterbury, England, is doing fine work in Italy. He has adopted some of the methods of the Salvation Army. A college and training-school has been opened in Rome, and a number of congregations and churches have been formed.

The American Hebrew, commenting upon the festival of Purim, with its gayeties and festivities, its wealth of historical reminiscences, and its inspiration to courage, devotion and fidelity, calls attention to the great temptation to dwell too exclusively on the festal character of the time; while its moral and religious phase is overlooked or not sufficiently emphasized. Without wishing to detract from the merriment of the season, it urges that the highest purpose and possibilities of the festival should not be lost sight of.

The census of all India shows a population of 287,200,000. Of these 207,654,407 are Hindus, 57,365,204 Mussulmans, 2,284,191 Christians, 1,416,109 Jains, 1,907,836 Sikhs, 7,101,057 Buddhists, 89,887 Parsees, 17,180 Jews, 9,402,083 forest tribes (animal worshipers), 289 Atheists, Agnostics, etc. Among the Hindus are included 3,401 Brahmas and 38,948 Aryas. The Brahmas are chiefly in Bengal, the Aryas in the northwest and the Punjab. The latter return themselves as Vedic or Aryans by religion, sometimes as Hindu Aryans, while even a few Sikhs describe their sect as Aryan.—New York Sun.

Aristotle attempted to weigh air by weighing a bag when empty and again after it had been inflated. The result of this experiment caused him to announce that air had no weight. Without air we could see the stars as plain during the day as we can at night.

Dr. Schliemann found bits of glass in his excavations at Mycenæ, though Homer does not mention it as a substance known in his time. The most eminent Egyptologists place the date of the first use of glass at a period too remote to be given in years.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

When the mosque of St. Sophia, in Constantinople, was built, more than 1,000 years ago, the stone and brick were laid in mortar and mixed with a solution of musk, and the building it is said has been infected with the odor ever since. Probably age has imparted a musty odor, from which the musk story was fabricated.

and know their WORTH.

WE PUBLISH BELOW A TESTIMONIAL FROM A FEW OF THE ENTERPRISING FARMERS OF OUR COUNTY, TO WHOM WE SOLD -DEERING BINDERS- LAST YEAR.

We the undersigned, farmers in Columbia County, each having bought of D. W. KITCHEN in 1891, a Deering Junior Steel Binder, with great pleasure recommend it to all farmers who may contemplate purchasing a Binder.

We have subjected our Binder to every test, and do not hesitate in pronouncing the Deering Binder far superior to any other machine we have ever seen.

For simplicity, workmanship and material it is unsurpassed. Its lightness of draft, durability and immense capacity are unquestionable and we feel confident in saying that to-day the Deering Junior Steel Binder leads the world.

We wish the Deering Binder unbounded success.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Never let your curiosity get the better of your discretion.

Only the quickening of conscience can hasten repentance.

He who would exert influence must exercise judgment.

More people are generous than have patience to be just.

A man may sin and yet be just, but the unjust man is a sinner.

Many shall court distinction for whom the wedding day will never be set.

Retrospect brightens existence only as it is repleto with pleasant memories.

A man longing for office always fancies himself invited to be a candidate.

Generosity is usually spasmodic, but justice is equity at every point.—Judge.

"I don't suppose," said the teacher, "that any little boy here has ever seen a whale." "No, sir," came the answer, "but I've felt one."

"It's but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous." "How so?" "Here's a man offers $1,000 for a bird dog. That's sublime. Here's the owner, who won't take it. That's ridiculous."

A Kansas editor makes this profound remark: "A good many people dislike society, and it is believed that they are afraid of company, but, as a matter of fact, it's finger bowls."

It took twenty years to show to the American people the economy of using a lining under carpets and they have not learned the common sense of it over in Europe yet.—The Upholsterer.

In the lives of the saddest of us there are bright days when we feel as if we could take the great world into our arms. Then come gloomy days when the fire will neither burn on our hearths nor in our hearts, and all without and within is dismal, cold, and dark. Believe me, every heart has its secret sorrows, which the world knows not of; and oftentimes we call a man cold when he is only sad.

The responsibility of wise and good measures in our political or social organizations does not rest wholly upon the leaders who pass them; it belongs largely to the people whose mental and moral progress has led up to them and made them possible; and no intelligent individual, no one capable of considering the subject and expressing his own convictions, is exempt from the duty of thus performing his share in the formation of public opinion.

SUMMER TOURS.

THE LATEST PUBLICATION OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

The 1st of June is a date looked forward to by the thousands who make their preliminary plans for summer outing, and their main guide is the Summer Excursion book issued yearly by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company which regularly appears on that date. Advance copies for the season of 1892 are fresh from the press and certainly excel anything of like character ever published by this progressive railroad company.

It is not only a compendium of all the rates prevailing over its own and connecting lines to the principal resorts of the land, but it is equally as valuable as a guide-book, with full and explicit information as to how trips may be made, and as to what desirable variation may be utilized to enhance their pleasure and profit. Nearly five hundred resorts, ranging from Prince-Edward Island to the mountains of Western North Carolina, from the southern extremity of New Jersey to the wild lakes of Canada, from the mineral springs of Virginia to the great inland lakes, described at length, and over fifteen hundred routes, representing a stock of fifteen hundred special forms of tickets, are set out clearly and intelligibly within its pages.

In arranging these routs care has been observed in making them read over lines that present the greatest number of interesting points and in every case there is a wide field for a choice. They also provide for a return trip by a different direction, so that the tourist may find his outing a continual succession of changing scenes.

It is so comprehensive that one could hardly ask for a ticket to an Eastern resort of any prominence and fail to find it ready-made by a variety of routes. One hundred and thirty railroads and steamboat lines are represented in the coupons of these tickets, every one of them connect directly or remotely with the Pennsylvania system.

The cover to this handsome edition represents one of the famous Pennsylvania Observation Cars artistically executed. The illustrations are the finest style of half tone work, on as high a grade as the popular magazine production.

Lamp-chimneys cost so little that we let them go on breaking. We go on buying and grumbling.

What should we do?

Get Macbeth's "Pearl-top" and "Pearl-glass;" they are made of tough glass, tough against heat; they do not break in use; they do from accident.

They are fine, well made, exact; they fit the lamps they are made for; stand upright; the shade is right; they make a right draught for light; they are uniform. Both bear a label for your protection. Look for it.

Be willing to pay a nickel more and stop this constant expense and annoyance.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, June 6, 1892.

Mr. Blaine is nothing if not dramatic and that his resignation was the carefully worked up climax of the professional dramatist is not for a moment to be doubted. He has recently concluded that he wanted the nomination, and all his actions since he reached that conclusion have been carefully planned with that end in view, and his resignation, which speaks as plain as if he said I am again in the field", was announced just at the time when it would do the most effective work with wavering delegates arriving at Minneapolis.

The Washington idea is that the resignation of Mr. Blaine knocks the last leg from under Harrison's chance, although there are some who believe that Blaine may still be beaten in the convention, but it does not look that way to your correspondent.

Democrats are well pleased over the situation. Mr. Harrison will aid Mr. Blane, if he is the nominee, to just about the extent that President Arthur did in 1884. Mr. Harrison would probably have lost his own state if he had been nominated, and his defeat by Mr. Blaine's peculiar methods will place that state in the democratic column, and he has power enough to see that the man who snatched from him at the last minute that which he had been foolish enough to think solely his personal property, is hurt in other States. In other words, Blaine secretly opposed by Harrison will be a much easier man to beat than Harrison supported by Blaine would be. The two men whom Mr. Harrison ought to blame the most are Secretary Foster and Attorney General Miller. They, by their ill-advised talk against Blaine, furnished the excuse for him to resign' which he was looking for; but he would of course have found some other excuse if they had guarded their tongue better.

Saintly Mr Wanamaker has been explaining again; his public life has been very unfortunate in this repect. This time he rises to say to the committee on Postoffices of the house that the statement made under oath by Mr. Samuel G. Leake, of Philadelphia, to the effect that Mr. Wanamaker had, after making certain promise to him concerning the erection of an experimental pneumatic tube to be used by the Philadelphia City postoffice, become interested, he believed, in 7,500 shares of stock which another pneumatic company had set aside for postoffice officials, and declined to fultill his promise, was untrue. He also informs the committee that "I shall be pleased to answer any call that the committee desires to make upon me, personally or otherwise." Evil disposed persons might place a bad construction upon the wording of the sentence quoted, but such is not my purpose. I deal with facts; others may put their own construction upon those facts.

Straws show which way the wind blows. U. S. Treasurer Nebeker is certain that he will have no use for a residence in Washington after the 4th of next March, that he has given up the lease upon the house his family has occupied since he entered office. When asked why he did not renew his lease, Mr. Nebeker laughingly replied, "Because we shall not need the house a year longer."

The Census Bureau investigation shows, so far, that a very demoralized state of affairs exists in that branch of the Government service Testimony has been given showing that a woman paid $12.50 a month to another woman, a relative of Chief Clerk Childs in order to retain her position, and it has been shown that the chiefs of a number of the divisions regulated their treatment of the women under them largely by the liberties the women allowed them to take, and that it is common for these chiefs to make pets of young and pretty girls under them, allowing them to work or play as they may feel disposed. These things have been hinted at before, but now they have been told under oath by ladies of undoubted reputation. And these things calling themselves men, are still allowed to draw salaries from the Government. It is not to be wondered at that the people of the country demand a change.

Mr. Harrison's alleged order to Federal officials to keep away from Minneapolis must have been intended for members of the Cabinet only, as every one of the chiefs of the large Government bureaux are at the convention shouting for Harrison. It is believed that if such an order was really issued it was because Mr. Harrison was affraid that more than one of his cabinet might have gone there in the interest of some of his rivals.

The House is pushing its work, notwithstanding the absence of more than half of the republican members. The Postoffice appropriation bill has been passed, and nothing but a point of order prevented its carrying an amendment repealing the mail subsidy act of the last Congress.

Merit Wins.

Nickerson, Druggist, 75 Chelsea st., Charlestown, Mass.

"Two years ago I was troubled with salt-rheum. It was all over my body, and nothing the doctors did for me was of any avail. Lynching Negroes in the South.

The frequent instances of the lynching of negroes in the South has lately attracted the attention of prominent religious bodies, such as the recent Presbyterian General Assembly, and has called out earnest protests from whites and blacks in the North. It is an appalling problem, but how is it to be met and solved?

Just when the churches, the public journals and philanthropic citizens of both races in the North were calling upon the South to halt this summary punishment of negroes, a horrible report comes of the swift lynching of a negro at Port Jervis in New York State. This lawless execution occured within twenty paces of one of the leading churches in the village.

This object lesson of Northern ideas of justice when a brute assaults a helpless woman on the highway proves that under like provocation, Northern and Southern people are alike human and likely to employ the same methods to protect the women of the land.

Let us look the sober facts in the face. Assaults upon women by brutal negroes have been multiplying each year in the South since the colored race has been given the rights of citizenship to protect and elevate its people This is not an argument against the freedom and citizenship accorded to the slaves; but it presents a condition that calls for heroic remedial measures.

The chief feature of injustice exhibited in the summary lynching of negroes for criminal assaults upon women, is in the fact that, as a rule, the white brute who commits the same crime, escapes the summary execution usually inflicted upon negroes. In point of fact, any crime committed by a negro that furnishes some measure of excuse for lynching him, should be regarded as meriting precisely the same punishment when committed by the white man.

But what is the remedy for both North and South to assure protection to the honor and persons of women? All public journals; all religious assemblies; all representative bodies of good citizens will unite in denouncing the lynching of negroes for the gravest offense against social order, but each individual of all these aggregations will, as a rule, confess that the rope or the revolver of the lyncher is the only remedy for the increasing assaults upon women. While these assaults continue lynching will continue; and there's the end on't.

The theory of the majes'y of the law is undisputed; but the peculiar condition sets it aside and lynching is excused even when none can justify it. It has been so for years past, it will be so for years to come; and until some system of government shall be devised to restrain the brutes who assault women, there will be little practical resistance to the enforcement of lynch law where a helpless woman's dishonor is to be avenged. This is not the common view of the question that is presented in the regulation deliverances on the subject, but it is the truth, and it is a truth that all should look manfully in the face.—Times.
